Areas of interest, research and professional involvement: I have always been passionate about oncology. During my residency, I was trained in pediatric oncology through the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital clinic at my institution. After residency, I moved to Texas to work at Cook Children's. Here, I was introduced to pediatric oncology through Children's Oncology Group (COG). I worked for a few years as an oncology clinical pharmacist and in the outpatient chemotherapy setting. In 2014, I moved into the investigational pharmacy role. Here, I am in charge of investigational drugs in the oncology setting. This role is exciting and has new challenges every day. I love being part of a world that is trying to advance pediatric oncology medication.

More about me: I am originally from Missouri. I love being outdoors, watching sports (go Gators!), traveling, being active and spending time with my friends and family.
